Transfashional Lab

Until Tuesday 4 April, ACF London

The exhibition presents emerging young artists and designers from Austria, Poland and the UK who work at the intersection between art and fashion. The exhibition explores the ways in which art and fashion can shape new positions and contribute to current social, economic, cultural and environmental debates. Transfashional Lab is presented in collaboration with the London College of Fashion and the Polish Cultural Institute in London.

Dear friends and visitors,

I would like to take this opportunity to introduce myself as the new director at the ACF London. Culture has always played an important role in bringing people together. As we enter challenging times for European politics and culture, it is more important than ever for cultural institutions to have a strong presence and to champion international dialogue and creative collaborations. At the ACF London we will work towards fostering cooperation and building bridges. In addition, I hope to present our programme to an even broader public by creating new and developing existing partnerships with institutions and arts organisations around the UK. I look forward to the exciting task of managing this vibrant and diverse art space and hope to see you at one of our upcoming events.

Yours sincerely,
Katalin Tünde Huber

Cineclub: Letter from an Unknown Woman

Tuesday 7 March, 7pm, ACF London

This year the ACF's Cineclub will screen several films based on and inspired by the works of Austrian author Stefan Zweig in anticipation of the release of the film

Farewell to Europe. Zweig was a great believer in a united Europe and the film is based on the author's life in exile.

Letter from an Unknown Woman tells the story of a doomed romance. In turn of the century Vienna, Lisa falls madly in love with concert pianist Stefan Brand, a self-centered womanizer.

Oscar Homolka Season: Sabotage

Thursday 16 March, 7pm, ACF London

Cineclub celebrates the remarkable but relatively unknown career of Austrian-born actor Oscar Homolka with a dedicated season. Born in Vienna in 1898, Homolka performed on stage and in films across Europe and fled to Paris and then London when the Nazis came to power. He ended up in Hollywood playing the cruel or bumbling European until returning to London in the mid-1960s. The season will be introduced by Austrian film historians Michael Omasta and Brigitte Mayr from Synema. Sabotage, also released as The Woman Alone, is a 1936 British espionage thriller directed by Alfred Hitchcock about terrorism in the United Kingdom. It is loosely based on Joseph Conrad's novel The Secret Agent. Hitchcock cast Oscar Homolka in the character he is most famous for: the sinister foreign villain.

Just Call Me God

Thursday 23 – Saturday 25 March,
Union Chapel, London

John Malkovich stands alone against the sound of the mighty Union Chapel organ in this astonishing one-man music-drama. Austrian playwright and director Michael Sturminger's music-theatre piece pits Malkovich against the grandiloquent power of the organ. Austrian organist Martin Haselböck responds with music by Bach, Messiaen and Ligeti: words against music, genius versus delusion, and at its terrifying heart, an actor who spares no-one – least of all himself.

Voodoo Jürgens

Monday 27 March, Servant Jazz Quarters

Austropop sensation Voodoo Jürgen brings his satirical Viennese music to London for a special concert at the Servant Jazz Quarters. This is a great opportunity to experience the unique sounds of Austropop – a style of music in which performers often sing in dialect and build on their own Austrian music traditions rather than a more mainstream European sound.

Anna Magdalena Kokits in Concert

Tuesday 28 March, 7pm, ACF London

Despite her young age, the Austrian pianist Anna Magdalena Kokits has established her reputation as a brilliant solo artist. She has performed internationally and has just recorded her first CD. One of her passions is to discover forgotten or rarely heard music as well as collaborating with living composers. She will perform an exciting mixture of contemporary music by Manuela Kerer, dreamlike pieces by Leos Janacek, witty musical gems by Jewish-Austrian composer Ernst Toch and music by Ludwig van Beethoven.

Variations on a Theme

Wednesday 29 March, 7pm, ACF London

The Austrian Cultural Forum London invite submissions of translations into English of Austrian poetry, short fiction and book extracts, and original short fiction and poetry in English, inspired by Austrian arts and culture. This is the first time these prizes have been offered. The winning translator and winning writer will have their pieces published. The winning translators will also be invited to attend a translation workshop. The selected pieces will be presented at an evening reception at the Austrian Cultural Forum on Wednesday 29 March.

Manu Delago Metromonk Tour

Wednesday 29 March – Thursday 6 April

Celebrated Hang player, percussionist, producer and composer Manu Delago will tour his much anticipated third solo album throughout the UK. 'Metromonk' finds this boundary-testing artist distilling and delicately exploring extremes of dynamics and mood; manipulating the Hang in experimental and inventive ways. Manu Delago has performed internationally with diverse artists such as Björk, the Cinematic Orchestra and Anoushka Shankar.

Oscar Homolka Season: Comrade X

Thursday 6 April, 7pm, ACF London

Featuring a stellar cast including Clark Gable and Hedy Lamarr alongside Oscar Homolka, this pre-war American spy movie follows an American reporter in Moscow writing critical articles under the pseudonym 'Comrade X'. This witty comedy, satirising the Soviet political system, shows Homolka in the role of Russian commissar Vasiliev desperately trying to track down Comrade X.

The Mentor

*Thursday 6 April – Saturday 6 May,
Theatre Royal Bath*

In a dilapidated art nouveau villa, somewhere in the German countryside, two massive egos are set on a collision course in this perceptive and compelling comedy about art and artists and the legacy of fame. F. Murray Abraham stars in a new play directed by Laurence Boswell, written by Austrian author

Daniel Kehlmann and translated by Christopher Hampton. This will be the first time one Kehlmann's plays have been performed outside the German-speaking world.

Ana Threat in Concert

Tuesday 11 April, Servant Jazz Quarters

In her own words, Ana Threat's world is one of 'haunted lo-fi garage sci-fi disco trash for loner bedroom dance parties'. After making a significant impact on the left-field end of Vienna's indie scene as part of The Happy Kids and Kristy & The Kraks, she has taken the plunge and defined her own vision on her recent album Cold Love (Cut Surface Records), an equally catchy and disturbing record replete with ramshackle loops, punk energy and charismatic chutzpah.

Oscar Homolka Season: Ball of Fire

Thursday 13 April, 7pm, ACF London

This witty screwball comedy revolves around seven quirky professors who have been given a year to write an encyclopedia. This playful comedy, culminating in a battle of intellect versus brutality, features Homolka as Professor Gurkakoff, one of his few sympathetic roles. If the plot seems slightly familiar it is because it is a rewriting of the Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs fairy tale.

directed by Howard Hawks

The Life and Death of Birds

Wednesday 19 April, 7pm, ACF London

Seizing upon Britain's ornithological obsession, this international artist collective presents an Attenborough-inspired story about modern-day London, told through music, art and literature, from a bird's perspective. How do birds go about finding food, real-estate and suitable partners in a global city? What are the flight and migration patterns crossing the skies of London? And how might these colourfully feathered 'citizens of nowhere' partake in the national nesting endeavours of post-brexite Britain?

Participating artists include Agnes Hvizdalek – Birdsong, Katie Horwich – Birdpainting, Fabian Faltin – Birdwatching and Sarah Bernauer – Birdvideo.

The project is presented in cooperation with the Swiss Embassy.

Academy of Fine Arts Vienna at Europe House London

*Tuesday 25 April – Friday 12 May, 12 Star Gallery, Europe House London.
Opening on Monday 24 April, 7–9pm*

To mark the 60th anniversary of the founding of what has become the EU, the 12 Star Gallery, in Europe House, is organising a season of exhibitions featuring students from Europe's leading art schools. Celebrating its own (325th) anniversary, the Academy of Fine Arts Vienna presents an exhibition, showcasing two young artists Antonia Strauss-Wagner and Sophia Hatwagner from the Art and Photography Class directed by Martin Guttman.

Illuminations I: Elfriede Jelinek

Wednesday 26 April, 7pm, ACF London

The first instalment of a new series of innovative events bringing to light and responding to the work of writers fundamental to the unique Austrian contribution to world literature in the post-war era. Nobel prize winner Elfriede Jelinek is one of the most powerful literary figures in Europe, a novelist and playwright of remarkable authority. Her work is marked by its purposeful originality and cutting exposure of bourgeois sensibilities. This series will feature entirely new commissions from a host of artists and writers from Austria, the UK and across Europe. Curated by SJ Fowler.
